

KNOW

BEFORE YOU VALET PARK YOUR CAR

A Valet Parking Operator License is required for any "valet parking service." Each location the valet service provider serves requires a separate Valet Parking Operator license.

Look for a city "valet loading zone" sign wherever valet parking operators are working. The sign will include the name of the valet parking operator and the rate they charge.

Valet parking operators are required to give you a time stamped receipt. This ensures the valet operator is responsible for what happens to your vehicle while it's in their possession. Keep receipts for at least 6 months thereafter to address any parking tickets issued while parked by the valet.

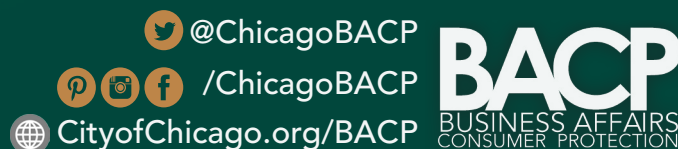

Ask a valet employee where your car will be parked. Valet parking operators are required to park vehicles in legal parking spaces (e.g., dedicated leased garage or parking lot spaces).

Do not leave wallets, cash, or valuables in the car that you are valeting. Walk around and check your vehicle before and after you valet, looking for dents the valet parking operator driver may have made.

Call 311 to report a valet parking operator violating any of the above points.
